WEAVER HIGH

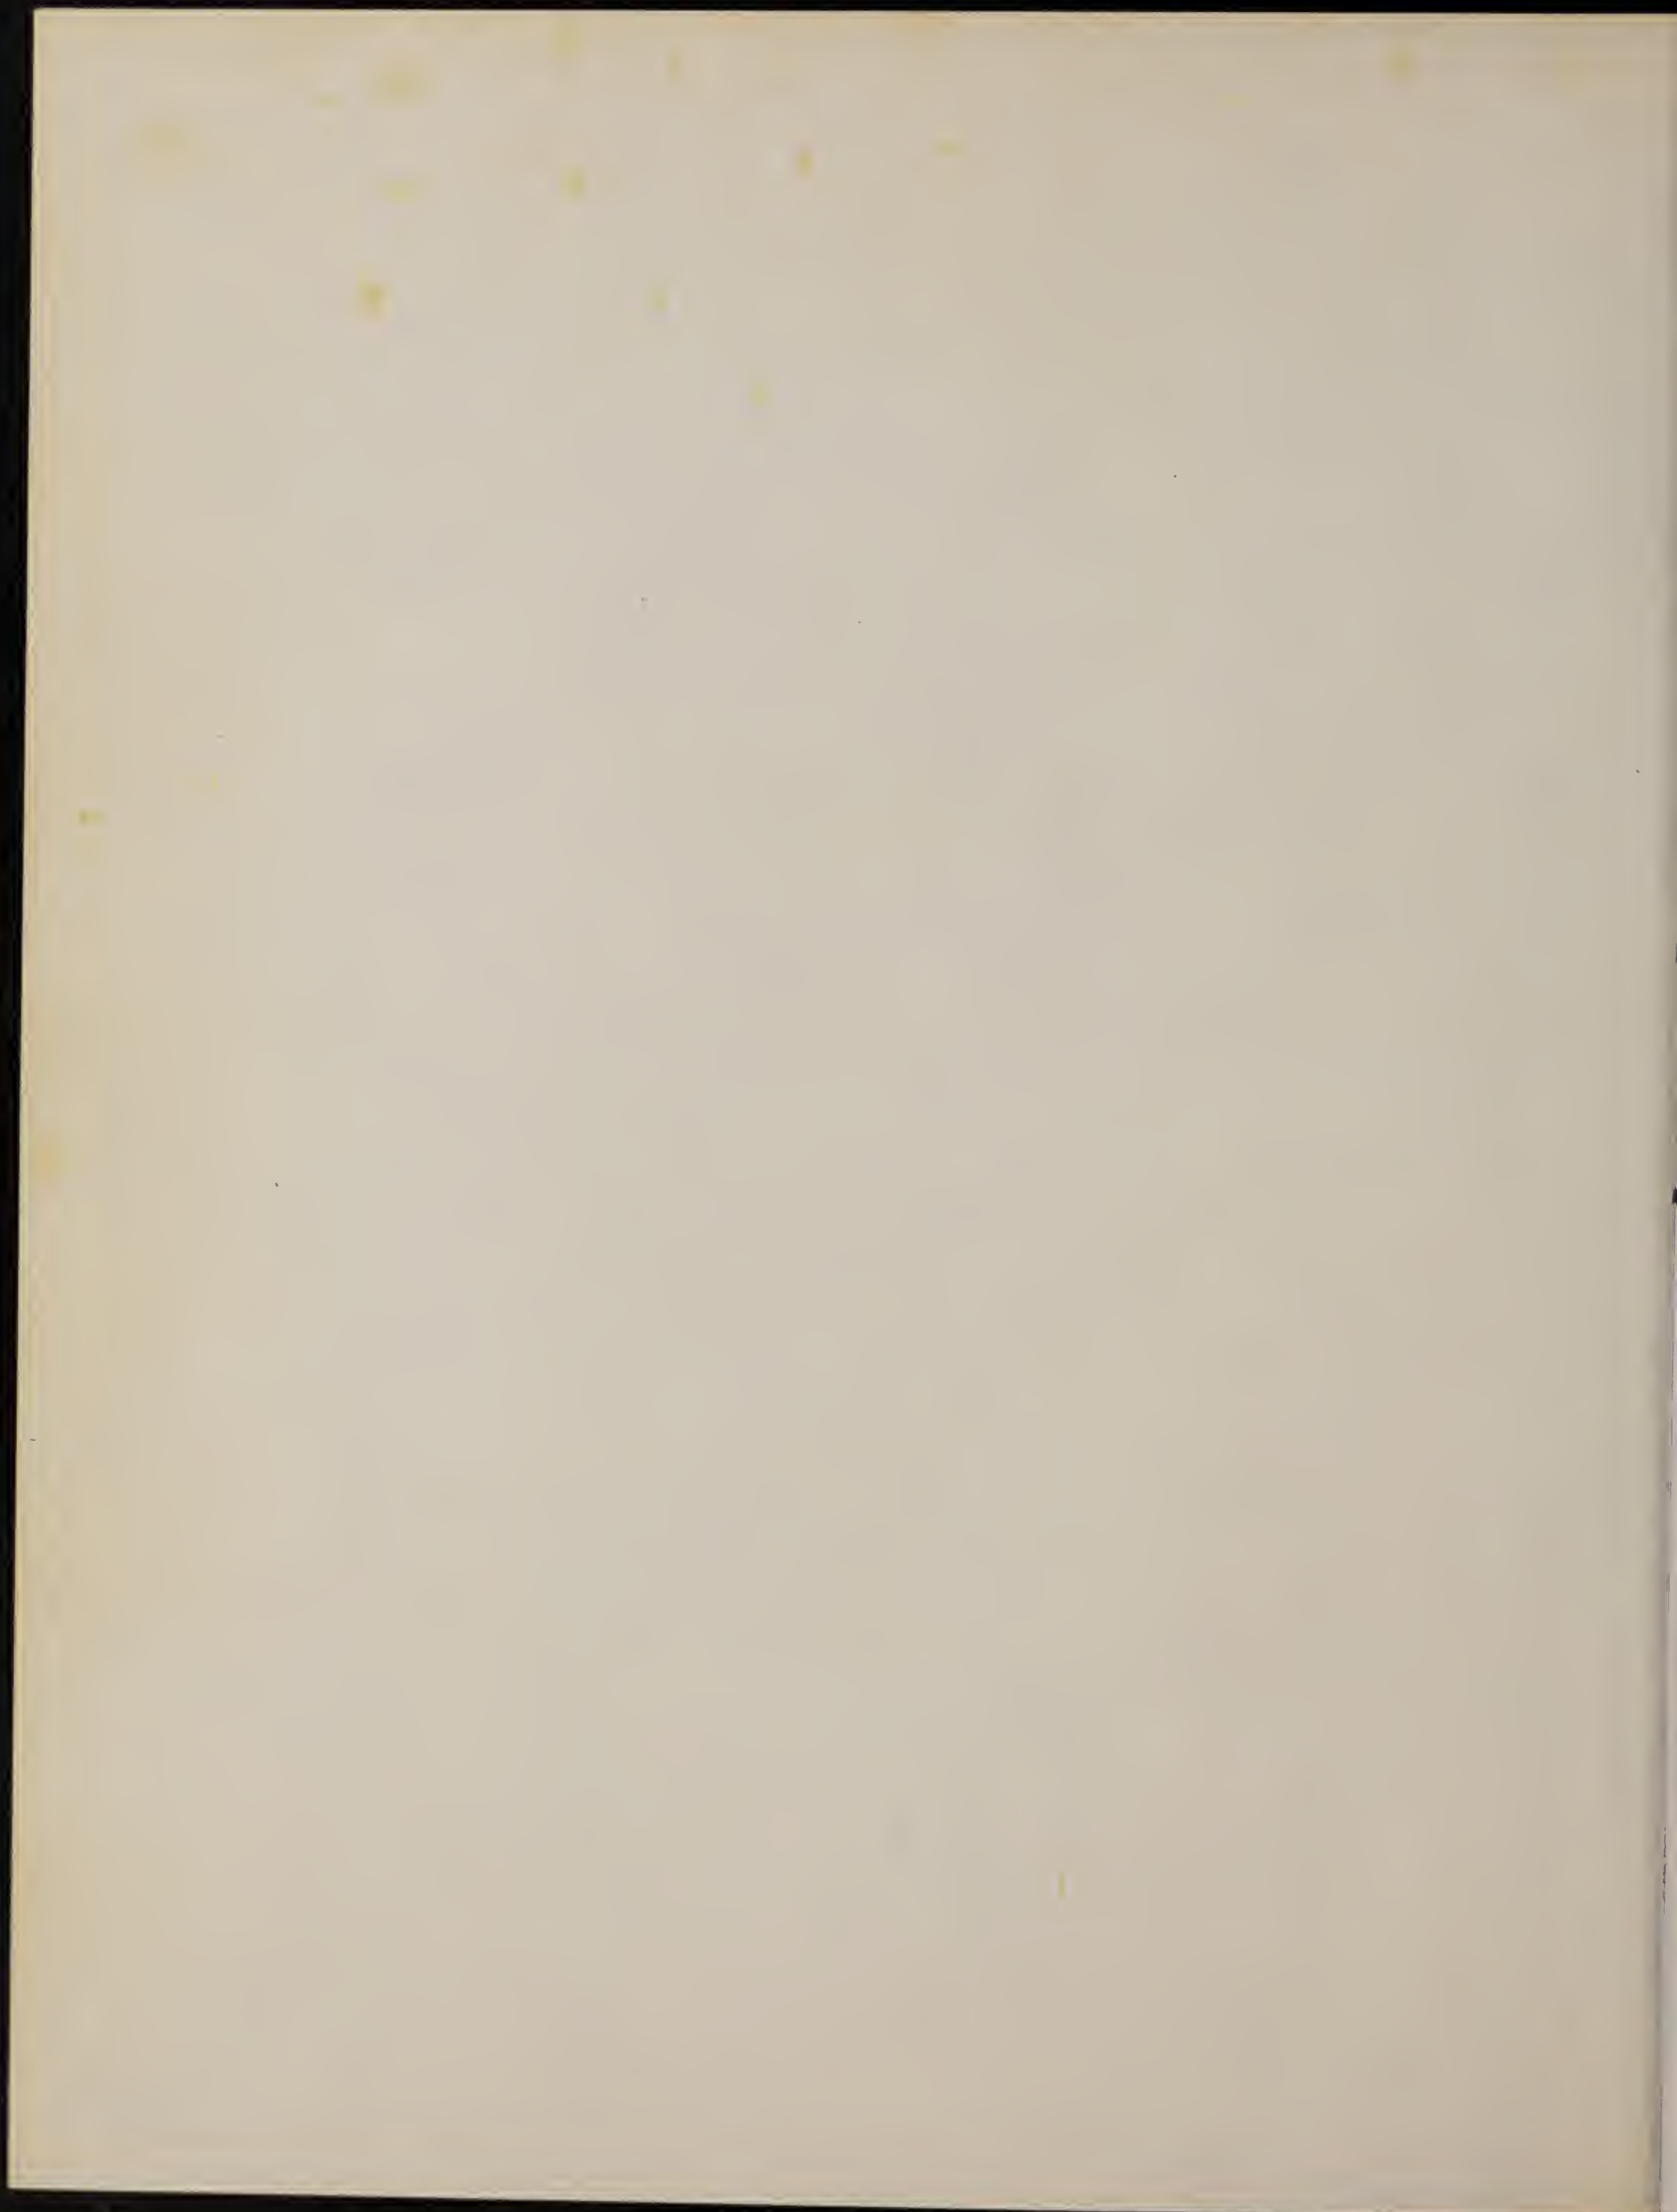

John Karrer

"Get it together" This is a saying that became a reality in 1977. This book documents the coming together of the community, parents, and students of Weaver High School. As this couple is united in friendship, so we, the Class of 1977 will always carry with us the spirit of togetherness we found in our four years at Weaver.

COMMUNITY AIDE

PURPOSE: An advocate for the student, liaison for the schools and homes, in order to bring about a more positive working relationship to obtain a higher and better educational level.

WE BELIEVE

Every child can learn. The School is a community institution. Good education is the result of parents, teachers and pupils working together. There are new and interesting ways of teaching. Each child's learning needs are different. Each child should feel important as a person. The school program must contribute to the moral and spiritual values of the child. Every adult should feel responsible to all the children in the community. The best discipline is self-discipline. PARENTS NEED THE HELP OF TEACHERS, AND TEACHERS NEED THE HELP OF PARENTS. UNITED WE CAN GO FORWARD POSITIVELY.

Sports Rap Up:

These are just three of the many faces of the Assistant to the Principal, Walter J. Hurley, otherwise known to the Weaver Community as "Doc". He is responsible for bringing many athletic events and famous sports personalities inside the walls of Weaver High. His relationship with the students is something special. Those who know him respect him as an administrator and a friend. He does both well. His continuous effort to restore Weaver to its academic summit, as well as an athletic powerhouse, was sometimes unnoticed but never unappreciated. Doc, we salute you!

(RIGHT) Wellington Davies and Warren Harding spent many hours in the evenings, during school, and on vacation days working on the Sports Section. As Editor, Wellington planned, layed out, wrote copy, and did the footwork necessary to produce this outstanding section. The entire book owes much to his seemingly inexhaustable enthusiasm and energy.
